1. The district council of the trade and procurement section in Frankfurt/Oder was in charge of the procurement of dairy products for Soviet units. It prepared the delivery bills for the main contingent bearers, namely Unit Fedjukov, Unit Nikolayev, Unit Muravitski, and Unit Alekseyev, and issued one copy each to the dairy in Eberswalde and the main contingent bearers. Each delivery bill was valid for three months. Signed and stamped, the delivery orders were sent by the main contingent bearers to the dairies, from where the products were distributed to the individual subunits.¹
